

Press Release: Crossover Pauses X Contest Amid Platform Account Suspension Sweep

October 13, 2025 —

Crossover has announced that its community contest on X (formerly Twitter) is being temporarily paused after the project's official account, @CrossovrToken, was unexpectedly suspended during X's latest automated enforcement wave.

Over the past week, X has confirmed it has banned more than one million accounts as part of an AI-driven moderation initiative designed to reduce spam and inauthentic activity. Unfortunately, it appears that Crossover's fast-growing community campaign was incorrectly flagged by these automated systems.

"Our contest went viral faster than anyone anticipated," said a Crossover spokesperson. "Community members were posting, sharing, and engaging with real excitement. It seems the AI filters mistook genuine growth for spam-like activity. We're confident this was an honest mistake, and we're appealing the decision."

The Crossover X Contest, which invited the community to post creative content using the hashtag #CrossoverToken, attracted dozens of submissions within its first week. Despite the pause, Crossover is recognizing and rewarding the Week 1 winners:

🥇 1st Place: @black_cyphr1

🥈 2nd Place: @divinity033

🥉 3rd Place: @Dylan9825844925

"We're incredibly proud of the creativity and passion our community has shown," the spokesperson added. "Even with the contest on hold, Crossover continues to trend on X — proof that this movement is much bigger than a single account."

The team confirmed that the contest will resume once the appeal process with X concludes. All previously announced weekly prizes will still be honored, and the Grand Prize round remains planned for November, pending reinstatement of the official account.

Crossover remains committed to its vision of building a community-owned, validator-powered crypto ecosystem, empowering regular people to invest directly in blockchain infrastructure.
